As part of a carefully managed deaccession process, a unique selection of furniture from the ANU Design Unit Furniture Collection will be offered for public sale. Only items identified as surplus to the collection's needs and in poorer condition have been selected, in line with best-practice collections management and ongoing care of the collection. This is a rare chance to take home a piece of university history – each item with its own character, charm, and well-earned patina from years of use. All pieces will be sold as-is, with no restoration or refurbishment -we encourage you to come along, explore, and discover something special!
