EDWARD IRVING PRIZE FOR GEOPHYSICS

CONDITIONS OF AWARD

1. INTRODUCTION AND RECOGNITION

Each year the Research School of Earth Sciences (RSES) may offer one prize known as the Edward Irving Prize for Geophysics.

The objective of the prize is to recognise and reward a high-achieving undergraduate student who achieved the best result in the geophysics course Global Geophysics EMSC2022 in that year.

The value of the prize awarded is $500.

The prize will be on offer annually.

Funding for this prize has been provided by Frederick and Penelope Lilley.

Frederick Lilley joined The Australian National University in 1968 as a Research Fellow in geophysics, and retired in 2003 as a Senior Fellow in the Research School of Earth Sciences. For some two decades he gave a geophysics course in the then ANU Department of Geology, as a guest lecturer from RSES.

Penelope Lilley was employed at The Australian National University in the Research School of Chemistry from 1983 to 2005, commencing as a Research Assistant and retiring as a Research Officer.

2. ELIGIBILITY

The award is available each year to an ANU student who:

- (a) was enrolled in a program leading to the award of a degree of Bachelor in the ANU College of Science; and
- (b) achieved the best result as shown by the award of the highest grade for Global Geophysics EMSC2022 in that year.

A student is not eligible to be awarded the prize if the student has made or is making a second attempt at the nominated course, and/or a similar course at another institution.

3. SELECTION AND CONSTRAINTS

Selection is made on the basis of achieving the highest grade for Global Geophysics EMSC2022.
